

Postal Rates of Botswana

by Gordon Smith

This article is an update to the work of Peter Thy published in the Runner Post, the journal of the Bechuanalands and Botswana Society in issue 26 in March of 1992, a copy of which can be found at <https://staging.postalhistory.ca/wp-content/uploads/2020/05/Botswana-Postal-Rates-Article-Thy-Runner-Post26.pdf>.

The first column in Table 1 lists the rates that were in effect at independence. As noted by Mr. Thy, “the transition in the postal services at independence on 30th September 1966 was gradual. Therefore, proclamations and legal notices issued by the Protectorate administration were still in effect in the Republic for a short period.” The rates at independence were originally instituted in 1963 and 1965 and were the rates until the new Republic of Botswana issued its first postal regulation, Notice No. 107 of 1966 which set postal rates as of 3 January 1967. Currency in use in Botswana at the time was South African Rand and cents.

The next rate changes occurred in 1971 to reflect Botswana’s shift to the metric system. In 1976, Botswana withdrew from the Rand Monetary Area under which the South African Rand had been the legal currency in Botswana since independence in 1966. However, it was not until 1978 that postal rates were changed to the new currency of Pula and thebe. The weights used to determine the rating structure were reduced for Surface Mail in 1975 and for Airmail in 1982. The whole system of classifying mail for the application of rates was revamped in 2001 to move away from the use of weights to the use of dimensions.

Despite the rapid rise in the cost of mailing items from the mid-1990’s until now, the rate increases are congruent with comparators. As Chart 1 shows, the trend in the cost of mailing a letter within the country is similar to changes in the consumer price index for the country,¹ i.e. increases in the cost of mailing a letter followed the trend of general increases in prices within the country.

Many of the influences of the cost of transporting mail internationally vary from those affecting the costs of mailing within Botswana. As the designated world reserve currency from 1944 until 1971 and the de facto one since, the exchange rate of the Pula (and Rand prior to 1974) to the US Dollar² provides a good index against which to compare changes in international postal rates. Chart 1 shows that the rates for international mail have followed a similar trend as the internal rates.

Interestingly, this chart also shows that changes in the consumer price index in Botswana have closely followed changes in the Pula / US Dollar exchange rate.

1. Consumer Price Index information obtained from <https://data.worldbank.org/indicator/FP.CPI.TOTL?locations=BW>

2. US Dollar exchange rate data obtained from <https://fxtop.com/en/historical-exchange-rates.php>

The compilation of rates provided in this article does not cover all the rates and is focussed on uses that collectors of postal history are likely to see. Therefore, as per Mr. Thy’s article, mail exceeding 100 grams has not been included and some types of mail such as parcels, samples, and small parcels are not covered. Complete rate information is available from the regulations and tariff guides for the Botswana Post Office which can be found on the author’s website at <https://postalhistory.ca/botswana-postal-rates-and-legislation/>.

The dates provided for the rate changes are based on the legal announcements by the government of Botswana whilst the Post Office was a government department and, following 1989, when the organization became a parastatal, the tariff guides provided by Botswana Post. Information on the rates are compiled from the article by Mr. Thy covering the period up to 1986, and the tariff guides provided by Botswana Post for the remaining period. As a parastatal, Botswana Post was likely charged with becoming a breakeven operation. As an organization which probably did not have to get new rates approved by the parliament, the organization was able to be a bit more nimble and adjusted its’ rates frequently through the inflationary period of the 1990’s and early 2000’s continuing through a period of rising costs in the 2000’s and 2010’s.

Mr. Thy has done an admirable job of reconciling various sources of information and his article provides information on situations in which he has found conflicting information where official dates and rates may differ due to the administrative enforcement of the regulations. His note of caution that printing errors and other mistakes appear to be common in the published regulations is repeated here.

The author would like to acknowledge the kind assistance of Peter Thy and Lena Bay in obtaining the rate regulations and tariff guides. He can be reached by writing to gs@postalhistory.ca

Chart 1: Comparison of Botswana Postal Rates to Consumer Price Index and Pula / US$ Exchange Rate

Registered Cover from Broadhurst, a post office in the northern portion of Gaborone, posted on 28 November 1995 to Parow, South Africa properly paying the Airmail to Southern African countries of up to 10 grams rate of 50 thebe and the registration fee of Pula 1.00.

Registered Cover from Tatitown, a post office in Francistown, posted on 5 March 2002 to Gaborone properly paying the Domestic Standard Letter surface rate for an item measuring no more than 120mm x 235mm x 20mm of 50 thebe. An additional Pula 1.75 postage is affixed. It is assumed on the basis of the value of this stamp issued on 12 December 2001 that this indicates that the registration fee of P1.75 established on 1 August 1997 continued into this period.

* An additional rate regulation was published on 21 March 1980, but it did not make any changes to the rates listed here, except to add "Mail within Botswana is transported by means which will achieve earliest postal delivery. In the event of mail being transported by air, there will be no special charge and there is no need for airmail marking." This is also noted in 1978.

 In the 1975 listing, countries in southern Africa include Angola, Lesotho, Malawi, Mozambique, Namibia, Rhodesia, South Africa & Swaziland. In the 1978 regulation and onwards, Angola is removed. In the 1 Dec. 1980 regulation, Mozambique is removed and Rhodesia has become Zimbabwe.

The dashes are direct reproductions of what is in the postal regulations.
